No More Neuritis In Arms, Neck, Legs or Thighs

If you want to get rid of the agonizing pains of neuritis, sciatica or rheumatism, just apply Tynol to the affected parts and see how quickly all misery will cease.
Tynol is a powerful penetrating absorbent, soothing and healing in action, which goes in through the pores and quickly reaches the burning, aching nerves. Those stubborn, swelling, inflamed joints, muscles, tendons, ligaments, bursae, etc., about the shoulder blade, face or head, in the forearm and fingers, or extending down the thigh to the toe tips, will soon disappear. Cramping of the muscles will stop and you will no longer be bothered with soreness, swelling, stiffness, numbness or tenderness of the joints and ligaments.
Tynol is not an ordinary liniment or ointment, but a scientific new emulsion that is entirely different from anything you have ever used. Don't suffer any longer. Get a supply of Tynol at any good drug store. Always on hand at Henney & Cooper.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS REORGANIZE DISTRICT

Transfer Will Cut Number of One-Room Buildings from 38 to 36 in Morrow County.

Special to The Star
MT. GILEAD, April 21—Three transfers of territory have been made by the Morrow county board of education. The three transfers will cut the number of rural one-room schools in Morrow county from 38 to 36.
The East Salem district in the southeast part of Harrison township was transferred to the Chester township district and 12 children who attended the East Salem school this year will be transported to Chesterville next year.

Sign Petition
Almost 90 per cent of the residents of the district signed the petition for the transfer, it was stated by County Superintendent H. O. Hanna.
The Possum Hollow district of approximately two square miles in the southeast part of North Bloomfield township was transferred to Perry township and the pupils there will be transported to the Johnsville consolidated school. They are now sent to the Harbison and Half Acre one-room schools. This petition was also signed by 99 per cent of the residents.
Go to Marengo
The third transfer was a part of two districts in Porter township, Delaware county, to the Bennington township district. The pupils will be transported to the Marengo consolidated school.

The transfer was made by the Delaware county board following the presentation of a petition signed by 90 per cent of the residents and was accepted by the Morrow county board Saturday. The additional territory will bring in between 30 and 50 new pupils at Marengo next fall.

May Combine Schools
The Woodbury school, south of Johnsville, may be made a consolidated school this year if the plans of school officials are carried out. The South Miller one-room rural school will probably be abandoned and the pupils there taken to Woodbury. The building at Woodbury is large enough to care for the extra pupils and two rooms will be used for the combined school there according to present plans.

ASK PROTECTION AT R. R. CROSSING
Upper Sandusky Residents Request Watchman for Public Safety.
Special to The Star
UPPER SANDUSKY, April 21—W. W. Patchell, division engineer of the P. T. Wayne division of the Pennsylvania railroad, appeared before the city council last night to discuss the traffic protection at the railroad crossings in this city. Mr. Patchell recommended that flasher lights be substituted for the crossing gates that are now used at Sandusky avenue, Seventh and Eighth street crossings.

Deputy Sheriff Fred Jones presented a petition circulated by 45 local citizens requesting a more satisfactory arrangement for the protection of traffic at the Sandusky avenue crossing. It was recommended in the petition that a watchman be placed at this crossing because of the large volume of traffic that uses this street crossing.

The request of local citizens for better crossing protection is the outgrowth of the serious accident April 5 when Mrs. Howard Andrews of Marion was fatally injured at this crossing and Harry Barriks and Mrs. M. McHaffey of Marion, were injured.
It was requested by members of the council that a representative of the Public Utilities come to this city to make a survey of the traffic that uses and meet with the council at the next regular meeting. Nine bills amounting to $322.88 were allowed at this meeting.

Tired of Losing-Robins, Reds Step Into Win Column

HUDLIN GRANTS NINE HITS, BUT CLEVELAND WALLOPS TIGERS 9-3

Babe Ruth Slams Pair of Homers as Yanks Hand Beating to A's, 5-4.

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
The National league, it seems, is to have an eight-club race after all. Brooklyn and Cincinnati, after taking it on the chin regularly since opening day, finally have broken into the winners' circle. Brooklyn's fabled, possibly the most rabid in either major league, feels certain the Robins have gotten a lot of bad baseball out of their system early and are ready now to romp right on to the flag.

Brooklyn's batting power, dormant several days, came to life and blasted a 10 to 5 victory over four Philadelphia pitchers. Every Robins joined in the fun, with Lombardi, big rookie catcher, leading the way with a pair of doubles and a single. Homer Wins Nick Cullip, former American Association home run king, led the Reds into the light. His circuit drive with two on beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7 to 5. Meantime, the St. Louis Cardinals took over the undisputed leadership by downing the Chicago Cubs, 3 to 2. Burtleigh Grimes beating Bob Smith and Guy Bush in a mound duel. Jim Bottomley's homer in the sixth provided the "difference."

The New York Giants and Boston Braves battled their way into a tie for second place by dividing their Patriots' day doubleheader. Rookie John Berly pitched much. Graw's clan to a 4 to 3 win in the morning, aided by Freddie Lindstrom's home run, but the Braves came back with a 1 to 0 verdict later in the day.

Ruth Clouts Two Babe Ruth enjoyed one of his most spacious days as the Yankees squared accounts with the Athletics. His two wallops into the stands, each time with Lyn Lary on base, accounted for all but one run in their 5 to 4 victory over Earnshaw.

The Boston Red Sox abruptly halted Washington's four-game winning streak, 13 to 3. Although hit hard, Willis Hudlin was tight in pinches and Cleveland stayed in the thick of things with a 9 to 3 decision over Detroit.

Miss Diana Fishwick, British women's golf champion, waited until her last round to show her best game during her visit to America. She shot a 78 on the Homestead course at Hot Springs, Va., two under women's par.

CALVARY NOT LIKELY TO REPEAT FOR FLAG IN S. S. LEAGUE RACE

Haruff Team No Stronger, While Other Clubs Have Bolstered Lineups.

WILL Calvary Evangelical repeat for the second consecutive championship of the No. 1 Sunday school recreation baseball circuit this season? This is a question which only time can answer correctly but if one should take the trouble to ask Bill Haruff, Calvary manager or any of his players, they will probably tell you it is not necessary to wait on time to answer it. They are quite willing to answer it for you. The answer is only one word and that in capital letters, YES.

Last season Haruff piloted his Calvary team to the pennant in No. 1 loop and then put up a good battle in the Little World's Series despite the fact the team lost one of its crack players when city rules forced Fido Robbins to play with the Erie Roundhouse in the series. Robbins played with both teams during the regular season and in case of conflict, city regulations require a player to play with the team company which employs him.

Baldauf Missing With the exception of one man, Haruff has all of his last season's team back for play this year. Willie Baldauf, slugging first sacker is not expected to occupy the initial post. Baldauf's presence is a big asset to any team and his loss will be keenly felt but Haruff has several other candidates for the post and is confident that at least one of them will be able to fill the bill.

Haruff will have the same hurling corps back to toil for him this season. Fireman Rube Gruber will more than likely be the starting pitcher most of the time with Lyle Messenger, Dick Snyder and Sherman Haldeman ready to take up the work whenever Gruber falters. Gruber and Messenger took care of the job in good fashion last year and should be able to repeat this season.

Lineup Nearly Same

The lineup with the one exception of Baldauf at first will probably be nearly the same as last year. Nelmever, Midlam, Myron Gibson, Courtney or Cloyce Messenger will patrol the outer gardens. Fox or Romine will be at first with Walt Baldauf at short. Bob Gibson will be on second base with Fido Robbins at the hot corner. Young and Sorrelles will do the backstopping. Bill Cummings and Jimmy Hrey are utility infielders. Haruff is not reluctant in stating he believes Calvary will win the pennant again this year. He is also casting envious eyes on the city championship although he knows it takes an unusually high class ball club to win the title in Marion.

Pennant Unlikely

Viewing Calvary from a non-partisan standpoint it looks like the Church street organization would have more difficulty in winning the league crown this year than last. Calvary has not added much new talent while other teams in the league appear to be considerably improved. Three other teams in particular look like they are ready to give Calvary a terrific battle for league honors. Calvary will be in the fight all the way and may win the pennant but it will be an uphill battle.

INJURY NOT SERIOUS

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, April 21—Ted Lyons' shoulder ailment is not serious. Dr. Philip Kreuscher, White Sox physician, has decided and the Sox ace hurler will be back in action next week. Lyons won 22 games for a seventh place club last year, but the catch in his shoulder, diagnosed as a slight ligament strain, has kept him from working more than a few innings, this season.

Harper Returns To 'Carry On' in Post of Rockne

By The Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 21—Jesse Harper is coming back to Notre Dame to carry on for the man who carried on for him—Knute Rockne.

Harper, athletic director at Notre Dame from 1913 to 1918, yesterday consented to return to serve the same capacity replacing Rockne whose tragic death three weeks ago today robbed the institution of its athletic leader. Harper will assume his duties May 1, the very Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of the university, announced.

Harper left Notre Dame after the 1917 football season to manage his father's ranch at Sitka, Kas., and prevailed upon the school's officials to give him assistant. Rockne, the job, although it was feared the latter was too young. He never was out of contact with Notre Dame's athletic situation and will not find the position unfamiliar.

Where Harper not only acted as director of athletics in 1913-18, but coached all major sports as well, he will do no active coaching this time. He will direct the administrative affairs of the athletic department, leaving football to senior Coach Heartley (Hunk) Anderson, and Jack Chevigny, assistants to Rockne last year. George Keogan will continue to coach basketball, and Dr. Jon P. Nicholson will remain as track coach.

Harper played football under Amos Alonzo Stagg, Jr., at the University of Chicago, from which he was graduated in 1906. Baseball, however, was his best sport and he won letters in 1903-04-05-06. His first Notre Dame football team, the 1913 eleven, was undefeated and astonished the football world by its use of the forward pass. Rockne caught the passes thrown by Charles E. (Gus) Dorais, now head coach at the University of Detroit. The next year he appointed Rockne his assistant, and together they developed the now famous shift.

NICK BOZINIS THROWS CHICK IN MAT BOUT

Greek Grappler Slams Cowboy Twice After Losing First Fall of Match.

It took some time for Nick Bozinis to get going last night in the main go of the bi-weekly wrestling match at the Steam Shovel gym but when he did things happened in a big way. Bozinis met Dude Chick in the two hour time limit bout but it didn't take him two hours to put Chick's shoulders to the mat twice to win the match.

Chick took the first fall from Bozinis in about 18 minutes but that was as far as he got. Nick dumped Dude to the mat in the second fall in only 12 minutes and then took another fall in less time than it takes to write about it. A reverse body slam gave Bozinis the third and deciding fall. In the semi final match, Clyde Robinson, substituting for Father Lumpkin, pinned Ad Herman. BREWERS IN LEAD Milwaukee Sweeps Series with Toledo; Columbus Wins Another. CHICAGO, April 21—Milwaukee appears to be set for an enjoyable American Association season. The Brewers yesterday made a sweep of their series with Toledo, winning 5 to 4, and today were at the top of the league with five victories and two defeats. Columbus' battered Red Sox gained the edge in their series with Kansas City by winning yesterday's contest 4 to 1, before the contest was halted in the eighth, by rain. Series finals between Louisville and St. Paul and Minneapolis and Indianapolis, were put on the double-header list because of rain.

GUARDS STAND BY AS ROBBERS LOOT CAGE

Detroit Office Loses $30,000 Despite Police Protection; Suspect Held.

By The Associated Press
DETROIT, April 21.—Police were searching today for the second of a pair of daring thieves, who cut a hole in the wire network guarding a cashier's cage in the city treasurer's office, beneath the eyes of three policemen, and fled with $30,000 in cash and $25,000 in checks yesterday afternoon.

Police said they had elicited from Theodore Crowley, 28, of Chicago, arrested a few minutes after the theft, a confession that it was he who took a seat on a stool usually occupied by one of three patrolmen assigned to guard the treasurer's office, on the second floor of the city hall, shortly before closing time.

Pretending to read a newspaper, he cut a hole in the cage, as George Wichow, the cashier, stepped out of the cage momentarily. Crowley's accomplice, whose name police are withholding pending his arrest, reached through, scooped up the checks and currency and the two men fled.

A clerk saw the theft and gave the alarm. Crowley was arrested in a store three blocks away. He had neither the money nor the checks.

POLICE CHIEF TRIAL BEFORE COMMISSION

Reach Halfway Mark in Hearing of Charges Against Marks.

was really for. Counsel for both sides declined to make opening arguments, and it remained for W. N. Harder, presiding commissioner, to explain the purpose of the hearing, which was to obtain evidence to support the charges of Mayor Jones against the police chief, which were general in nature.

Says Report Met Charges

W. P. Moloney, representing Mayor Jones, objected to any reference to "charges" being brought against Chief Marks, declaring that there were no charges to be proven but merely a review of Chief Marks' record to be considered by the commission. He also held out that Mayor Jones was required by law to furnish the commission with the chief's record of the 90-day period, and that such a record did not constitute charges.

Strelitz, representing Marks, objected to the submission of evidence by witnesses, asserting that no specific and formal charges had been brought against the police chief up to the time of the hearing, and that the chief as yet had not been given adequate time to prepare a defense.

On advice of City Solicitor Carter Patton that the commission had a right to proceed with or without a hearing in its taste it in consenting or refusing to approve Marks' removal, the commission ordered the hearing to continue. Patton acted as a legal adviser to the commission.

Director on Stand

Safety Director Sonnanstine was on the stand an hour, giving detailed reports from the police records and bringing forth a list of detailed incidents in which he charged the chief had failed to perform his duty. He first read his report to Mayor Jones at the end of the 90-day probation period, regarding Chief Marks' record for that period.

No obstacle was placed in the chief's path during the 90-day period, Sonnanstine's testimony began. The chief was instructed to make all his orders to the department in writing and to work in harmony with the night captain and other members of the force.

Other witnesses who took the stand with Director Sonnanstine last night included Hoover Brown, Police Captain Ira Shrock, Patrolman R. B. Wayland, E. C. Macken, Harry Smith, A. W. McColly and H. B. Tong.

Chief Marks did not testify and was not given an opportunity to defend himself other than through cross-examination. In a recent statement filed with the commission Chief Marks charged that his regime as police chief had been necessarily conservative because he lacked cooperation of his superiors, including Mayor Jones and Safety Director Sonnanstine.

Sonnanstine's testimony. Other accusations made against Chief Marks by Director Sonnanstine included charges that Marks had told persons he didn't know anything about the work, but was sitting tight until his probationary period was up; that Marks had failed to gain the confidence of his men, lacked ability to question prisoners, and has withheld information from police officers. Although saying he did not have time to question prisoners, Chief Marks had sufficient time to spend at the National Guard armory and his battery shop here, Sonnanstine charged.

Although given "abundant information" about violators of liquor laws, Marks failed to raid bootleggers, leaving Marion in a "bootleggers' paradise" during the 90-day period, the director testified. During one raid, the director continued, Marks walked out of a house without arresting anyone for possessing a still found in the house or without taking or destroying the still.

An instance where Chief Marks had held a woman several weeks without preferring a formal charge against her, and various alleged occasions where Chief Marks is said to have received "tips" from patrolmen that certain houses should be raided but failed to act were recited by Sonnanstine.

Says Evidence Destroyed

Although two jugs of wine and some beer were taken and a woman was placed under arrest during a certain raid, the woman was released without facing a charge and the evidence was destroyed, Sonnanstine continued. Chief Marks was given an opportunity to resign at the end of his probation period, the director said. On cross examination, Sonnanstine admitted he had not called the chief into his office for conferences regarding police work only on one or two special occasions. He said he had done nothing about Marks' alleged oversights and mistakes, pointing out that Marks was the police chief, and that the management of the office was a concern of the chief, not the safety director.

Sonnanstine was asked by

Strelitz whether anyone, to his knowledge, who took the civil service examination for police chief had been approached and asked to waive their place on the certification list. Sonnanstine answered that he heard that three men were approached, but that he did not talk to anyone about waiving such rights except E. C. Macken, patrolman, whom he advised against withdrawing.

Most of Sonnanstine's testimony was read from police records and from his detailed report to the mayor covering the 90-day probationary period of Chief Marks.

Hoover Brown on Stand was the next witness called. He was a resident of Marion where he followed a woman parked in an automobile near his farm at the time some corn was stolen from him. He followed this woman to a house in Marion, and obtained information that led him to suspect two men, he said. When he gave the names of these men to Chief Marks, he was told they were members of Company B, of which Marks is captain. He said Marks did not show any willingness to prosecute on this case.

Brown's testimony was attacked by Strelitz whose questions revealed the fact that Brown's farm, where the corn was allegedly taken, is located in Wyandot county. Brown also admitted he had not offered to file an affidavit for the arrest of the men.

Police Captain Ira Shrock followed Sonnanstine on the stand. Shrock testified he accompanied Marks on a search of a private home where liquor was found, but that no prosecutions were made. He said the chief asked "What'll I do?" when they found wine and beer during the search of a residence for stolen property. "You're chief," Shrock said he told the chief.

Shrock also charged Chief Marks did not give him complete details of the burglary of the Avenue Lumber & Supply Co. on Bellefontaine avenue, and that work on this case was delayed because of lack of this information.

Wayland Follows Shrock. The testimony of Patrolman R. B. Wayland concerned only one incident when he made a suggestion to Chief Marks that a certain place was handling liquor. Wayland said he suggested that additional evidence be obtained before any action was taken. He also said no raid on this particular place was ever made.

Patrolman Harry Smith testified he accompanied Marks and Shrock in the search of a house where a still was found, and also said no action was taken at the time to prosecute the owner of the still. He said action had been obtained on one of six "hot" places suspected of handling liquor which he had reported to the chief. Smith testified he had never been asked to waive his rights of promotion on the certification list of the civil service commission.

Testimony of Patrolman H. B. Tong concerned information Tong had given Marks about liquor being sold at a certain house here. No action was ever taken against the offender, Tong testified. However, Tong also testified that Marks never did anything to his knowledge to protect law violators and always gave the patrolman all the cooperation and help he needed.

Macken Testifies

Patrolman E. C. Macken's testimony regarding several cases coincided with that of Patrolman Smith and Captain Shrock. He said he has pointed out several places to the chief where he suspected liquor was being sold, but that only one of the places had been raided, and that the raid was made since the expiration of the 90-day period of probation.

On cross-examination, Macken said Marks had never interfered with his work. He said Shrock had asked him if he would consider withdrawing his name from the eligibility list of the commission for appointment as police chief.

Patrolman A. W. McColly said he had reported four specific cases in which liquor was being handled, but that Chief Marks had acted on only one of the four tips.

Haste is urged for those boys who are writing essays on bird houses for the bird house essay contest to be held Tuesday of Boys' week which opens Saturday and will continue until May 2. Carl May, boys' work secretary of the Y. M. C. A. said yesterday that all entries in this contest should be in his hands by 7 p. m. Tuesday. This will give the judges time to examine the papers and to decide the winner. Diaries of the nesting and habits of birds observed should be written neatly on one side of the paper, according to May, and drawings or sketches may be used to illustrate points. The Rosenberg-Kleinmaler trophy cup will be awarded the person having the best essay. Neatness, accuracy and completeness will be the most important points to be considered by the judges.

The hobby and handicraft show which opens next Thursday and closes Friday is expected to draw a greater number of entries and exhibits than the show last year. The display of hobbies and handicraft work will be held in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A.

Some of the things that were displayed last year in this show were bird houses, natural history collections, coins, stamps, curios and relics, collections of school note books, camera craft, mechanical and technical work, drawings and furniture making. The Glosser-Schoenlaub trophy will be awarded the boy displaying the best hobby or handicraft work. Boys from 8 to 18 years of age are eligible to compete in this branch of boys' week activities.

"My baby had eczema for about two months. It broke out in the form of a rash, and her skin was very red. It itched and burned and caused the baby to lose many hours of sleep. Several different remedies were used but none were successful. We began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped her, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment she was completely healed." Baby Chicks Thrive on Tobacco, College Reports

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., April 21.—Tobacco fed to baby chicks is making them into bigger and better broilers at the Pennsylvania State college.

This same nicotine diet in the fully grown fowl, makes chickens, hens and roosters—and what is more, may emancipate their farm owners from having to keep from them from having to keep from them so closely watched for fear of a parasitical infection that causes biological chemistry have been feeding tobacco rich in nicotine, and with less tobacco but a bigger kick.

The material is made by grinding the whole tobacco plant. The most successful brand is a plant nicotine extract, containing five per cent more of nicotine.

Cause Uncertain
The reason for the greater growth of baby chicks is not wholly clear. It is not necessarily ascribed to nicotine. If the cause is nicotine, then this is something new in such effects. Dr. Haley said. Better health may come from the killing of commonly called worms, a type of fowl parasite. To minimize attacks of these parasites, farmers have been forced to raise their chickens on ground free from such organisms.

Take care with their first smokers the chicks can be made ill by too much tobacco at the start.

MARY ASTOR
AT MARION

Following "The Office Wife," comes "Behind Office Doors," showing at the Marion Wednesday and Thursday. Charming Mary Astor, Ricardo Cortez, Kitty Kelly, Edna Murphy and Catherine Dale Owen make up the cast.

Do business girls lead more of a love-life in offices than chorus girls behind theater wings and dressing room doors? This is the question concerned in Miss Astor's latest talking picture role.

A photograph, sent to the publisher of a leading film magazine was the means for Mary Astor's introduction to the screen. It was a second prize winner and the prize was a trip to Hollywood and a role in a two-reel picture which was produced but never shown.

Eighty-five secretaries employed at the Radio Pictures studio collaborated in creating the authentic situation for this picture.

WILL ROGERS IN "CONNECTICUT YANKEE"

Will Rogers outdoes himself as a comedian and actor in "A Connecticut Yankee" showing at the Palace tonight and Wednesday. The picture is everything that the silent version was, and with its theme brought up to date, is even funnier.

The knights charging to battle in Austins, Rogers and his roping and gun-chewing and cowboy methods are only a few of the modern touches given this hilarious comedy to make it even funnier.

Will is delivering a radio battery to a mansion and sees a boy and girl trying to leave against the wishes of a handsome woman. He is ushered into the presence of a man who is attempting to pick up sound waves of past generations on the world's largest receiving set. Will hears the blast of a trumpet, the announcement that he is in King Arthur's court; then a flash of lightning and—

From then on until the closing scenes, he's a Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's court, who is dubbed "Sir Boss" because of several miracles he performs for the king. Myrna Loy is a seductive, malicious "Queen Morgan Le Fay."

William Farnum bids for his return to the screen as King Arthur. Maureen O'Sullivan and Frank Albertson carry the sweetheart roles. The picture is thoroughly entertaining and the children will laugh just as hard as the grownups.

A comedy and short subjects with a news reel complete the bill.

"VIENNESE NIGHTS"

The lovely "Viennese Nights" returns to the Ohio Wednesday and Thursday. The musical scores with this beautiful technicolor picture are unforgettable. The picture, which played here several weeks ago, is heartily recommended for lovers of good music and of sweet romances, void of camp, murders and detectives. Vivienne Segal, Walter Pidgeon and Alexander Gray head the cast.

Paul Whiteman and his band will be heard in "King of Jazz," returning to the Princess Wednesday and Thursday for its second run. This technicolor film is elaborately produced.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS GIRL'S DEATH

With both robbery and attack discounted as motives for the hanging of Miss Louise Teuber, 17, of San Diego, whose half-clad body was found dangling from a tree on Black Mountain, near the city, the authorities have been working on a revenge theory. They were inclined to believe that she might have been the victim of a band of infuriated women who had believed her guilty of a fancied "love pillage."

The Stars Say— For Wednesday, April 22

A FAIRLY auspicious state of affairs may be looked for on this day, judging by the favorable position of Sol in relation to Jupiter—the planet of accomplishment and fruition as well as ambition. It is a good time to push in the direction of expansion and growth. But purely personal activities or affiliations may prove a waning force or incite to extravagance, indulgence or carelessness in social, domestic or business obligations.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a successful and progressive year in the line of business or general activities, with advancement and increase of funds, but there may be a tendency to squander these accumulations in undue social indulgences or excessive pursuit of pleasure.

Vexations and anxieties may grow out of these proclivities uncurbed.

A child born on this day should be talented and accomplished in social as well as business parts, and should attain good position through its merits and ambitions. But it may have inclination to extravagance and indulgence in the pursuit of pleasure.

MURKIN—China and the Soviets are splitting a nice melon. The total income of the Chinese Eastern Railway during 1930 was 48,000,000 gold roubles, and when all operating expenses have been paid, the profit goes to the two governments which operate the line jointly.

WASHINGTON — Prince Takamatsu is drinking to alcoholic liquor while visiting the United States. None is served at functions he attends. None is carried in his party under diplomatic privilege.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Chief of Police Sloan proposes to ask the city council to amend a 50-year-old ordinance which permits bathing without clothing in the Pacific between 8 p. m. and 6 a. m. Police autos have been busy searching at night in response to sundry reports. After one such search that almost succeeded, somebody dug up a copy of the ordinance and put it on the chief's desk.

SANTA ROSA, Calif. — Nine fellows here are regretting their eagerness in agreeing to supply alcoholic liquor for a circus. They dickered with a visitor who was placarding the town with posters. He was a prohibition agent.

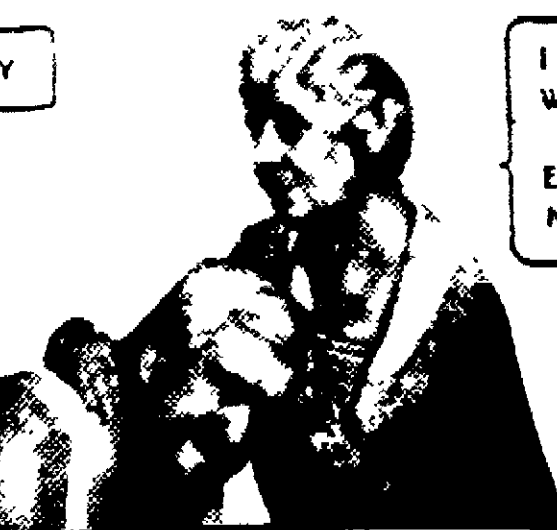

WINDSOR, England — Ship, who often followed King George in the corridors of Buckingham palace or the grounds, is dead. He has been buried in Norfolk beside Caesar, a dog who was in King Edward's funeral procession. Ship was a Cairn terrier. The only pet the king has now is Charlotte, an old parrot.

LOS ANGELES — Patrick Henry is a bridegroom and his bus romance covered four states. In Texas he boarded a bus bound from Chicago to Los Angeles. Daisy Frame of Chicago was aboard. By the time New Mexico was reached they were friends. They became engaged in Arizona. They were married at Los Angeles, in the front seat of the bus. Henry is a cattleman of Henryetta, Okla.

SOUTHGATE, Calif. — A "duck" plane, invented here is the latest contribution to aviation in Southern California. The queer ship was invented by Earl E. McClary of this city who had spent several years experimenting with airplanes. It resembles a duck. The motor is located in the rear of the fuselage. It is a four passenger cabin plane of monoplane type. The inventor claimed he could land his craft at a speed of thirty miles an hour.

PROBES BANK RECORDS

Investigators Seek Source of Huge Incomes of Chicago Police Captains.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, April 21.—Special police officers, seeking to uncover the source of the huge incomes of Chicago police captains, today were probing the private banking records of the department where crooked money might be suspected.

The records of the financial affairs of 17 captains were already in the hands of the police, and the department reported to have been ordered to include every bank account of the department where crooked money might be suspected.

Officials said they eventually will require more than 200 banks to furnish the police with records of police captains' financial affairs.

Thousands Tell Of Fine Results Through Konjola—Read These Statements.

We thought to the statement of Miss Irene Tuomi, 353 West 72nd street, Chicago, who says: "I had stomach trouble; nothing agreed with me. Bloating and gas pains followed each meal. I lost weight and energy. Just three bottles of Konjola were sufficient to end my stomach misery. I gained fourteen pounds and look like another person."

Equally enthusiastic is the expression of Mr. Joseph M. Boll, 105 E. Roosevelt street, Chicago, who says: "My stomach caused me untold misery for ten years. I had no appetite. I took Konjola just for a week and indigestion and flatulence were entirely relieved. My life was no longer drudgery. I demand Konjola and get it; it is switched to a substitute."

Party Leaders Keep Eyes on Vice President Curtis

His Decision on Whether To Run for Reelection or Seek Senate Seat Regarded as Important in 1932 Outlook.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, April 21.—Republican leaders looking ahead to the 1932 Presidential race were eagerly watching for the decision to be made by Vice President Curtis on seeking reelection.

If this party veteran determines to go out for his former seat in the senate from Kansas rather than take a chance on another four year term as vice president, it is conceded the move will bolster anti-Hoover Republican forces.

Curtis will announce his decision in the fall. Meanwhile he is keeping his own counsel. Friends say he is confronted with pleas from both those who would have him run again for vice president and those in Kansas who would have him campaign against Senator McGillicuddy.

Certain it is that Curtis has no intention of retiring from public life.

While he was one of the outstanding foes of President Hoover in the pre-convention campaign of 1928, the Kansas has served the Hoover administration loyally since he was nominated vice president.

But there are no ties to the future between Curtis and Hoover. There have been rumors of other vice presidential candidates in the official family of the President.

The attitude of Curtis is being watched particularly by restless Republicans of uncertain strength who are speculating on an attempt to overthrow Hoover in the next convention. This group has its nucleus in the dissatisfied Hoover organization of 1928 in the south headed by Horace Mann.

In the gossiping at the capital there also is talk among anti-Hoover Republicans of an attempt to get Calvin Coolidge back in the race with Curtis or Senator McNary of Oregon, as his running mate. But that is only gossip and speculation so far ahead of a campaign.

Means Saving
Aside from the fact that citizens of a democracy owe a responsibility to their neighbors, "It is only a case of economy to concentrate on our local programs of prevention to avoid increasing expenditures in our state institutions," the welfare director stated.

Mcweeney pointed out that the last winter with its huge relief load has in some cases been the means of bringing to life social problems long neglected.

Commenting on modern trends in welfare work and their possibilities, Mcweeney cited examples of the success of preventive measures.

"We have ample proof," he said, "that a comprehensive recreational program, for instance, has often been the means of lessening delinquency."

Director Mcweeney, who had been asked to deliver an "inspirational" address, sought to impress upon welfare workers at the meeting the necessity of continuing relief work with enthusiasm.

"Many of you must be tired because of your increasing responsibilities and some of you will be sickened at finding widespread apathy toward the problems caused by unemployment to which you are so close," he added.

"But the state of Ohio must depend upon you," he concluded. "Indiscriminate relief work was condemned in Miss Atkinson's talk. The recognized need for adequate investigation of people in need of relief has been reflected in the past winter by few blanket methods, such as bread lines or soup kitchens, giving carelessly administered relief."

Urging a careful investigation of every request for help, Miss Atkinson said "the amount of harm which may be caused by indiscriminate giving will creep out for years to come in the families who have been caught by the depression."

Walker Asks Governor To Dismiss Accusations of Incompetence, Corruption.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, April 21.—Mayor Walker, denying he "condoned incompetence and encouraged corruption" in the municipal affairs of New York, has asked Governor Roosevelt to dismiss the removal proceedings against him.

In his reply to charges filed by the city affairs committee he called the city affairs committee as "an annex to the Socialist party."

"I declare that I have adequately and consistently done my full duty as mayor of the city of New York," said the reply delivered to the governor at Albany yesterday.

He defended the police and said he had no control over magistrates' courts, except to appoint magistrates.

Citing the city affairs committee as "an annex of the Socialist party," he made caustic references to the two members who signed the demand for his removal—John Haynes Holmes, its president, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise. He declared Mr. Holmes to be a "recognized leader in a group of agitators and Soviet sympathizers" and quoted a piece of doggerel which described Rabbi Wise as a man of "vast and varied misinformation."

Earthquake Rocks Region in New York, New England

By United Press
ALBANY, N. Y., April 21.—Severe earth tremors which shook nearly all of eastern New York and parts of New England were believed today to have followed what is known to scientists as the St. Lawrence fault, which extends from Quebec province to the Hudson valley.

Houses were rocked and windows rattled by two distinct shocks late yesterday, which lasted for approximately 20 seconds. No serious damage was reported in any of the affected area.

Dr. Ralph E. Wilson, assistant director of the Dunham observatory, predicted additional shocks within the next few days. He said that these quakes probably were caused by a slight slipping along the St. Lawrence fault to which several tremors have been attributed in the past.

The tremors were reported to have been more severe in other parts of New York state. Clocks were stopped at Glen Falls, and Lake George reported the shocks were followed by a loud roar.

Harvard university reported the quake lasted in Cambridge for about two minutes and was more severe than any felt in the region recently.

WINTER, SUMMER
COMPETE IN WEST

Snow and Freezing in Some Sections, with Mercury High on Coast.

By The Associated Press
KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 21.—Winter and summer were at grips over the western half of the United States today with high temperatures on the Pacific coast and sub-freezing marks east of the Rockies.

At several California points the mercury soared to new records for April, yesterday, causing the state forestry service to issue forest fire warnings. Low humidity in Washington and Oregon increased the danger in that section. Fair and warmer was the general forecast in the Rocky Mountain area, which was swept by show flurries last night.

Unsettled weather, with cloudiness and low temperatures, were forecast for the plains states in the wake of snow and rain. Freezing marks were forecast for North Dakota, Nebraska and parts of Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma. Farmers in the area feared the benefits from heavy rains would be offset by damage to crops from the cold. Temperatures were expected to rise during the day, however.

Snow fell yesterday in Montana, Wyoming, eastern Colorado, western Nebraska and Kansas and the panhandle of Oklahoma.

Three or four forest fires in California were reported under control.

BRITAIN SEEKS TO BE QUEEN OF SKIES

England Extends and Improves Air Forces; Secret Tests Being Made.

By International News Service
LONDON.—That the next war will be fought in the air is a foregone conclusion, and the British government, fully recognizing that the British navy is no longer the dominant factor in world armaments, is making every effort to make Britain as invincible in the air as she was on the seas before the great war.

Extensive plans for the complete overhauling of the royal air force's airplanes are in course of completion, and it is learned that secret tests of several types are being made by the air ministry to find successors to airplanes which are now only two or three years old and now considered out of date.

The famous "Southampton" flying-boat is to be scrapped, and preliminary examinations of its successor has been narrowed down to four planes.

The new flying-boat are:

A Saunders-Roe flying boat, fitted with three Jupiter "B" engines. A Blackburn Sydney, with three Rolls-Royce "F" type engines. A Vickers Supermarine Southampton Mark 10, with three Jaguar "B" engines; and to King's bay to prepare for the fight over the North pole. The admiral took Igloo along to the South pole when he made that flight two years ago.

A Shortt Singapore II, with four engines of the Rolls-Royce "F" type.

The Blackburn Sydney being a monoplane, is altogether a new type of machine for the air force. The others are biplanes.

"But Igloo didn't go along in the plane as many people thought," the admiral said. "That wouldn't have been right. In case of an accident what would have happened to a dog when the ship had to be destroyed?"

Scheduled to deliver two lectures in Memphis tomorrow, the admiral had cancelled both because of Igloo's illness.

Mrs. Nelly Malloy, chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements at Memphis, said she pleaded with the admiral that a United States senator, an Episcopal bishop, the mayor of the city and other dignitaries were waiting to welcome him. She told him tickets had been sold and an auditorium hired, but Byrd refused to give up his plan to go to Boston until news of Igloo's death came.

THAT UNIVERSITY makes you realize how important to the human race are great accumulations of money gathered by individuals.

In 1892 John D. Rockefeller gave $600,000 to help start the University of Chicago. In 1910 he had given $35,000,000. He said that was enough, Chicago should do the rest. His foundation took the liberty of disagreeing with him and gave many more of his millions, to Professor Breasted, head of the oriental department.

Among other things, Mr. Rockefeller, who real estate, 25 years ago bought all one side of the Chicago Midway, with a big park at either end. The buildings are going up on both sides of that Midway.

President Hutchins teaches a freshman class in his own peculiarly intelligent way, beginning with Homer and ending with Freud; encourages the 14,000 young men and women to study winter and summer in his university, to think for themselves, decide for themselves, their decision including the kind of education that they want.

IT IS A GREAT university, a pity to print such inadequate reference to it. That will be improved later. Send your boys and girls there if you want to make real AMERICANS out of them.

They will go to a university of earnest scientists and able teachers that have included all three American winners of the Nobel prize for physics—Michelson, Compton and Millikan.

They will like the great Amos Alonzo Stagg, who graduated at Yale in 1888, and has been teaching athletics in the Chicago university for nearly 50 years. You might see him yesterday dashing around a corner, eight miles an hour, in his electric runabout, a wonderful man, physically as young as ever, and mentally younger than we.

Jubilee's
PardnerA Story of Boyhood
Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

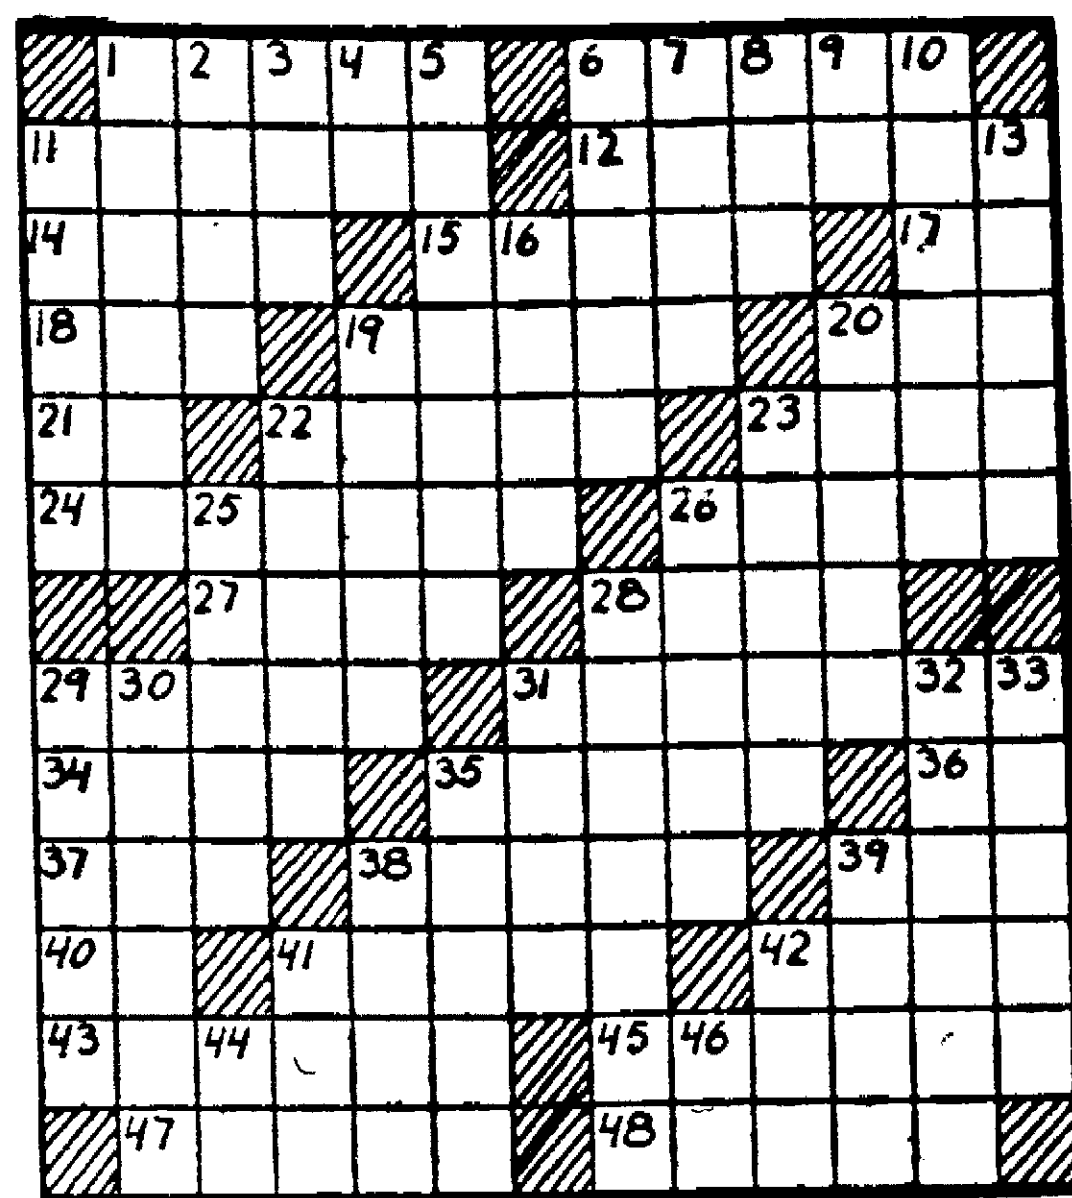

WHEN I woke up this morning I found myself rolled up tight in the covers, so I knew it was still chilly, but when I had pushed Jubilee out of bed and had got out and opened the window the wind had stopped blowing and the sky was clear, so I told Jubilee when I was letting him down to cheer up because it was going to be a warm day, and then I heard him give a yelp and I stuck my head out of the window and looked down and one of my mother's iron wash-tubs was right under the window and full of water, and I had let him light down into it. Some dirty crook must have got here before daylight and got the tub out of the barn and fixed it.

I got into my short britches as fast as I could and went downstairs and out to the barn and got the other tub and filled it full of water and set it next to the feed box, and covered it with an old blanket and some loose hay, and every kid that came in tried to set on it, but I told them not to and to not let anyone but the Lost Bag of Tripe set on it, so then I started to milk the dumbered brutes, and just then the Lost Bag of Tripe came in through the hole into the alley, and just then Feeble and Youniss came in through the door, and we were all watching the Lost Bag of Tripe, and I knew the way he looked at Jubilee and tried to look innocent that he was the dirty crook that done it. And just then he saw the covered up tub, and the hay on it and started for it, but just before he got to it Feeble holled, "Fooled you!" And she set down on it like a thousand of bricks, and she let out a screech and rose up like she had bounced off of a springboard. Every one but me and Feeble thought it was a good joke. She stood pulling her clothes away from herself and looking cross-eyed. She said who ever done it it wasn't much of a joke, and I told her if she had let the fella it was fixed for set on it it would of been, so she went in the house to get dried out. I told the Lost Bag of Tripe that I told a dog that hadn't done anything to him, and he said he thought so too.

When I went in Feeble was wropped in a blanket and setting by the stove and her clothes was hanging on chairs near the stove. When my uncle came out of his room he asked her to lend him her blanket and she stood up and made out like she was going to do it and I got scared and gave her such a push to make her set down again that both her and her chair tipped over, and she might as well have lent it to him. I made out like I wasn't looking, and set down to feed my face, and when her clothes was dry she took them into my ant's room to put them on, and came out with her lips and cheeks reddened and her eyebrows looking like mustaches. I am glad she isn't my sister. I bet my ant is too.

Mad Pursuit

BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

(Copyright, 1931, Jessie Douglas Fox)

SYNOPSIS

Like a snake eternally wriggling out of its skin was Julian Lake. So moved his motherless daughter, Nora, in the garden of the Italian villa Mrs. Nevers had lent them. His wanderlust never satisfied as he dabbled unprofitably at painting. Lake led her an uncertain life. One sweet memory she cherished—that of a bicycle trip in England and the youth of 20 she had met. Even after their casual farewell, his philosophy and poetic aspirations had left their impress on the girl five years his junior. Half forgotten, his name Jonathan Thayer, comes to mind when she recalls that her father's guest, Nicholas Thayer, a painter, has the same family name. The rising sun disturbs her reflection that perhaps he knows Jonathan.

CHAPTER 2

"I Want To Live!"

THE house was still asleep when Nora had come in from the garden and dressed. She made the strong black coffee her father liked, and two slices of toast. Balancing her father's tray carefully, she went to the door on the second floor and knocked.

"Come in!" her father's voice called. "So it's you. Where is our slave?"

"Magdalena didn't come." Her father with a sweep of his hand cleared the table beside the bed, knocking Don Quixote on the floor.

"What have you got there? I feel like a breast of chicken and lead champagne," he said. But he sat contentedly munching toast and drinking the steaming coffee.

Nora sat down and observed him with delight. His crooked hair, his wine-colored eyes, his long face with its lively expression. His skinny arms protruded from the sleeves of his pajama jacket like brown twigs.

"Hand me my cigarettes. I was talking to Thayer last night. You know he's here. He knows of a place in the Tyrol. . . the truth is, Nora, I can't stand this hole any longer."

He rumbled his dark hair with long nervous fingers. "I'm tired of wandering. I'm tired of meeting people we never see again. Oh, Julian, let's go home! I want to live!" Nora cried flinging out the old cry of youth.

"You can't, when you're always thinking of money, wondering how you can pay the next night's lodging, hoping you'll meet someone who'll lend you something."

"Well, well go home then," he grinned. But Nora knew that he would promise her anything she asked and show only a hurt surprise when she reminded him of it later. But now his silence was transparent as silence often is between two people who have lived long together; so that she could almost understand his keen appraisal of her.

He was looking at her rosy mouth in the fresh pallor of her face. At the eyes so full of light that her Irish mother had given her; at the terrible red blouse she wore and the slim legs in stockings that needed darning. But, Julian Lake thought, disregarding the discrepancies in her clothes, she was a lovely creature.

He seemed pleased. He spoke from a train of thought that she was not slow to follow. "Take some breakfast in to Nicholas Thayer, but see if you can't find some bread that isn't moth-eaten."

"If you'll give me some money," he waved toward his cluttered bureau where brushes and dirty glasses, a pair of old shoes and a half-finished sketch sat companionably together. But Nora, having made a thorough search, showed him their whole fortune, no more than five lire.

"Not enough. We'll have to pay Magdalena," she told him. "My poor bourgeois child, who ever heard of paying the good Magdalena? She comes with this villa."

"But I'm sure Mrs. Nevers expected you to pay her."

"I shall speak to Mrs. Nevers," he said serenely. "And you might ask Nicholas for a few lire, just as a loan. Remember our proverb, 'Court where money is.'"

"Julian!" cried Nora, a fearful thought leaping into her mind. "Why did you ask him here? You never liked him when he was at the pensione."

"Nor did you," her father said. "If you must live, as you put it, why not marry Thayer? He's deep enough. He's bound to make you unhappy. And that's what the young call living. Isn't it?"

She turned and faced him at the door, her lashes tipped up showing the angry brightness of her eyes. "That man!" she said with a scorn she thought superb. "He never looked your way, did he?" he asked, his face creasing into delighted laughter.

She tried to be very dignified, opened the door with one hand, but the tray tilted and a cup slipped over and she set it straight with a bang. Outside the door she heard her father's chuckling laughter.

Still smarting with anger at her aunt's father had rung at her, she walked past Nicholas Thayer's room. The door was open. But he was not there. She stopped, arrested by something she saw on the table. It was a small painting propped up against the wall. The picture seemed to draw to it all the light and interest of the room. An old peasant woman sat before her dark hearth, looking through her open door. Sunlight keen and brilliant streaked across the earthen floor, lay on her patient folded hands, her bent head in its white coat, the blue of her cotton skirt.

Nora moved back and continued to look at the picture. The trembling sunlight, the polished panes of the window, the woman's dark lined face.

The painter had laid bare the life of the old woman, in the patient resignation of the face, the faded hands. It was so unlike the clash of colors in which her father painted, that it was as though Nicholas Thayer had used another medium.

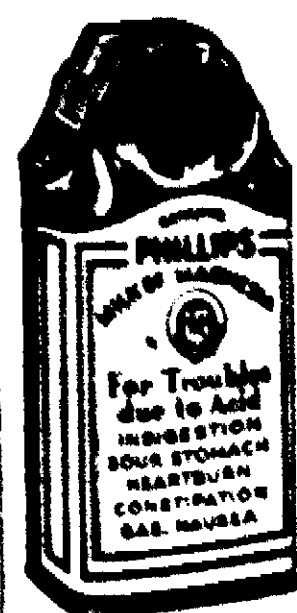

She hurried downstairs, set the tray with a crash on the table in the salon and saw that Nicholas Thayer was waiting up and down the room. He was the very person that she wanted to avoid, but she was intensely curious about him.

To the girl of 20 this man in his early thirties seemed fairly mid-aged. He was a tall and shaggy fellow in gray tweeds that had taken on the easy lines of his body. The curt "Good morning" he gave her showed that she was only an interruption.

Observing him narrowly she saw the structure of his face was violent, with its jutting nose and strong chin. The glance with which he swept her was penetrating and cold under a heavy line of brow.

"I wanted to tell you I'm going away today," his voice was harsh like his personality. Nora wondered what could have attracted her father to such a man.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Secret of "Scorched Pants"

I HURRIED downstairs after Roderick, hoping that I would be able to catch him and silence him before he should betray—innocently enough—the secret concerning their clothing which his brothers were making such strenuous efforts to keep from Marion and Mary—especially Mary. I knew how intense and out of all proportion is the self-consciousness of the adolescent boy, and knew that an incident which would tell on themselves in most hilarious fashion, was causing Hank and Bill real suffering in their fear that it might come to light.

Ahead of me I heard Roderick calling, "Hank! oh, Hank! where are you? I want to tell you something." But no answer came to him, and I could visualize his brothers hiding in the back stairway waiting for Dicky to spirit them away to Bridgehampton, and heaping anathemas upon their small brother's head.

Junior's voice shrieked a call to his cousin.

"Ho—o—o! Rod! C'mon out! The folks are all here."

The "Folks" Arrive
A babble of voices confirmed his words, and I hurried to the door through which Lillian, Mary, Marion and Harry were coming, their arms piled with bundles and their faces beaming. The joyousness of the girls I knew was caused by the acquisition of the new frocks and accessories which they had gone to Southampton to purchase, and that of Lillian and Harry by the even more satisfying joy of bestowing longed-for things upon a beloved child.

Mary dropped her bundles and dived for me as soon as she spied me.

"Oh! Auntie Madge, you darling!" she cried. "Thank you so much for all these lovely things. Where's Uncle Dicky? I want to thank him, too. I see his car's here. That means the boys have come. Where are the rascals? Suppose I'd better give 'em the once over."

Beneath the carefully staged nonchalance with which so many of our younger generation mask their emotions, I knew that there was real affection for her brothers, and that she was eager to see them; but I gave one of our private signals to Lillian as I answered carelessly—"They're with Dicky somewhere. They'll come in soon," and she promptly played up, saying with assumed impatience: "They can wait a minute or two. Come on upstairs, girls. I want to see what Madge and Katherine think of these frocks we bought. If they don't leave a trail of whatever is the modern substitute for masculine heartbreaks, then I'm a bum guesser."

"Say, Mary!" Junior edged himself into prominence and seized his moment. "I know where the boys are."

"So do I," Roderick added jealously, but Junior rattled on, impervious to interruption, and apparently unhearing the frantic "Junior!" which I shot at him, but which I did not repeat. I knew that emphasized objection upon my part to the revelation which I saw was now inevitable, would only make matters worse. But my fingers twitched with an unholy desire to shake my young son, who palpably was much pleased with himself as a raconteur.

Roderick Makes His Announcement
"They're going with Uncle Dicky to Bill Bates' over at Bridgehampton to buy some white flannel pants. They were terrible worried because their clothes were all wrinkled on the ride coming down, and they wanted to dress up in their best. But their pants was all wrinkled. Dad pressed their coats for 'em, 'n' then he left 'em to press their own pants, and Hank burned a hole right through his—"

"N", I yelled at Hank, "Now see what you've done!" Roderick snatched the chanting of the saga deftly away from Junior and planted himself in the limelight, and Hank turned around quick, and the iron caught me on the arm and burned me. See! he displayed a bandaged arm proudly—"Grannie fixed it up for me. But Hank didn't burn me on purpose. He was awful mad and said he did, but he didn't and I've got to find him and tell him. Has he gone yet?" He finished, breathless, with a query to Junior.

The sound of a departing motor—fast—Dicky evidently had handed his gear shifts admirably—came to our ears; and I answered his question.

"Yes, they've gone, and I want you boys to go directly to your own room and stay until I come. I have something to tell you before the boys come back."

The youngsters looked at each other and then at me in evident panic.

Conserving the "Beams"
"What've we done, now?" Roderick asked plaintively, and Harry Underwood turned away abruptly. "Nothing bad," I reassured them. "I just want to talk to you."

"Oh!" With relief in voices and faces they started for the door, to turn back with a look of appeal.

"Kis we see the new things, before we have the talking?" Junior asked, not eagerly, but with the propensity of all small boys—and girls—to postpone anything boring, and to declare themselves in on anything that happens.

"Afterward, perhaps, not before," I told them, and resolutely they turned toward the stairs again. When we had heard the door close upon them, Harry Underwood grinned widely down at me.

"All right, Madge, we promise," he drawled. "We won't tell any bones. But tell us what you say."

"I told them, and resolutely they turned toward the stairs again. When we had heard the door close upon them, Harry Underwood grinned widely down at me.

"All right, Madge, we promise," he drawled. "We won't tell any bones. But tell us what you say."
